Project Description

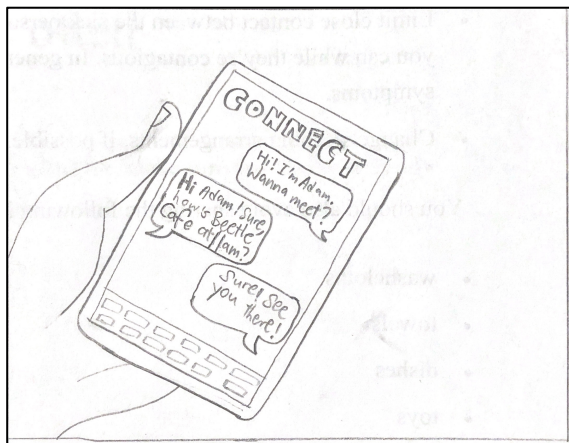

Our project aims to help new international students cultivate a feeling of belonging in America by providing a platform for them to connect to people, learn about American culture and language, and reflect upon their experiences. Through our mobile application, users can connect to a range of people – other international students who have been in their place before, working professionals in fields they want to work in, friendly locals willing to share more about American culture, and more. Such connections would help users feel more comfortable and heartened and that they are not going through their difficulties alone. Users are also encouraged to log their experiences through text or photographs so that they may look back on their posts, allowing them to track and appreciate their growth in this new country.

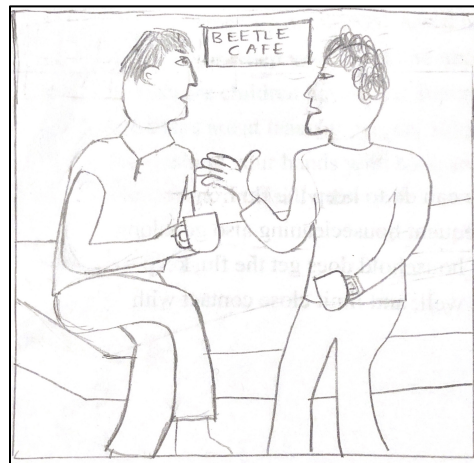

Adam decides to find someone to talk to through the 'Connect' section of the app

App pairs Adam with Jason B., another international student

Adam and Jason organize to meet up at a Café the next day

Adam listens to Jason share his experiences as an international student.
